

C'est dans la région du Douro que Domingos Alves de Sousa produit ses vins, selon une tradition familiale initiée par son grand-père, qui est aujourd'hui reprise également par ses enfants. L'ensemble des vignes couvre une superficie d'environ 123 ha, répartis en 6 domaines : Gaivosa, Vale da Raposa, Caldas, Estação, Aveleira et Oliveirinha. Parallèlement à l'important héritage viticole de la famille, les vignobles de demain sont préparés aujourd'hui.

Dans la cave à vin de la famille, chaque année, le profil de chaque vin est perfectionné et de nouvelles interprétations du Douro sont créées. De nouvelles techniques, de nouveaux styles, certains déjà révélés, d'autres encore en cours de développement et de maturation. Ils explorent la diversité des variétés traditionnelles de la région et la diversité écologique des vignobles. Des vins tels que Quinta da Gaivosa, Abandonado, Vinha de Lordelo et Reserva Pessoal sont le fruit du dévouement, de l'innovation et du profond respect pour le terroir des oenologues, Domingos et Tiago Alves de Sousa.

Le vignoble

Branco da Gaivosa a été l'un des premiers vins blancs du Douro issus de la révolution du "nouveau Douro" des années 90, son premier millésime ayant été commercialisé en 1992. Il s'inscrit dans la longue tradition de la Quinta da Gaivosa en matière de raisins blancs. Mais pour produire des blancs seuls, de nombreux changements ont été apportés, d'abord dans les vignobles. Un travail important et significatif avec beaucoup de soin, de passion et de dévouement pour exprimer et mettre en valeur la fraîcheur, la minéralité, la complexité et l'élégance des vins blancs de Gaivosa.

The deepening of Quinta da Gaivosa's White wines

Quinta da Gaivosa always had a great white wine tradition. For many years the Alves de Sousa family used its grapes for making top quality white ports for some of the most important Port Wine shippers. In the early 90's Domingos, 3rd generation of winegrowers from the Alves de Sousa family, decides to embrace Douro dry wines becoming one of the faces of this Douro's revolution. And the first release at that time, in the land of Port and big Reds was... a white Douro wine.

What could almost be considered an act of "insanity" at that time has now many followers. Today, fortunately, white wines are rising again in the region.

And while many keep following today's trend" and are now looking for white grapes from this or that area, we keep our philosophy. We don't run after the best grapes. We work to grow the best grapes. Day after day, year after year, in our vineyards. Our investment on the whites started many years ago, transferring our best white varietals to the right terroirs – suitable altitudes, suitable exposition, suitable soils – and with a viticulture adapted to this new challenge.

Branco da Gaivosa Grande Reserva is one of the results of the knowledge and experience of Alves de Sousa with Douro's white grapes, gathered with all the care and effort present on the vineyards and on the wines.

Quinta da Gaivosa Vinha de Lordelo Red 2019

For a long time we've wanted to understand the origins of Quinta da Gaivosa's terroir. The quality of the different vine yards responsible for this prestigious D ouro blend was well known. But its small surfaces and low yields were then vinified together, making it difficult to understand the vineyards different contributions. In 2003 an additional effort made possible the separation of the individual parts of the blend, revealing the nuances and particularities of Gaivosa's top vineyards in its elementary form. And this was how we've (re)discovered Lordelo – the oldest vineyard from Quinta da Gaivosa. An amazing composition of 30 indigenous grapes field-blended (including rarities such as "Malvasia Preta"). With over 100 years, its amazingly low yield (an average of one tiny 200 g cluster per grapevine) would rationally lead to its replanting. But there's nothing rational about a vineyard like Lordelo. There's emotion, history, legacy and a unique character that the Alves de Sousa family is truly pleased to share.

The Vineyard

Quinta do Vale da Raposa was in 1992 the stage for the debut of the Alves de Sousa family in the production of Douro wines with a red that soon caught the attention of wine lovers and international press. An example? Direct entrance to the prestigious list of the "30 Best Buys" in the whole world by famous UK journalist Oz Clarke.

And this was only its beginning. The release of "Grande Escolha" in the best years was complemented with a acclaimed collection of varietals, with a very special highlight for its Touriga Nacional (winner of the 1 great tasting of the grape, both in Portugal and Brazil) and Tinto Cão (only Excellency Award in the Douro from the Portuguese Wine Magazine in 2000). Today it comprises a complete line up of Douro wines (white, reds and a rosé) expressing the quality of the terroir of the Quinta do Vale da Raposa.

The Vineyard

The future of the wines of Quinta da Gaivosa continues to be developed in its vineyards. "Primeiros Anos" (pt. "First Years") represents one of those steps. Recently restructured, using a group of insightful and innovative techniques, but with a deep respect for the teachings of the old vines and a willingness to explore more deeply their "terroir". These are the first fruits. The first indications of what future holds for Gaivosa's new vines.
