Paris PLEY HOTEL

PhotoTravelbuds

Upon entering the hotel, a sentence suspended in the air, "One Two Three Four. Is it snowing where you are" - the first voice message sent and received by radio wave in 1900 - welcomes you to this original hotel in the heart of rue du Faubourg-Saint-Honoré. The 100 generously sized rooms and suites are dressed in variations of blues, whites and pinks and punctuated with photographs, advertising posters and old radios found throughout France. A vintage and vibrant atmosphere that pays homage to the history of French radio. The Penthouse, located on the top floor of the Pley Hotel, with a private access to the hotel's rooftop, is the ideal place to organize exceptional tailor-made events and private parties. With a breath-taking view on Paris and the Eiffel Tower, the rooftop terrace will transform in Tropezian beaches this summer: rosé wines, fish rillettes and other tapas for a pleasure break.
